

Who is up for trying to change the world with local food?

Pam Warhurst,
Incredible Edible
Todmorden

2 Incredible Edible Todmorden grows and campaigns for local food.

The Oromo Coffee Company has inspired us to continue our focus on the ethical sourcing of produce.

Christina Longden,
Director, Lorna
Young Foundation

Where there's a green or ethical option, I always try to choose it.

Rita Verity, Sonia's
Smile

We are reducing poverty through improving quality as well as implementing sustainable farming practices.

Sanjay Kumar, Tea Buyer,
Taylors of Harrogate

4 Ecology Building Society, Keighley, puts people and planet first in buildings and for savers such as Rita Verity, Sonia's Smile, Haworth.

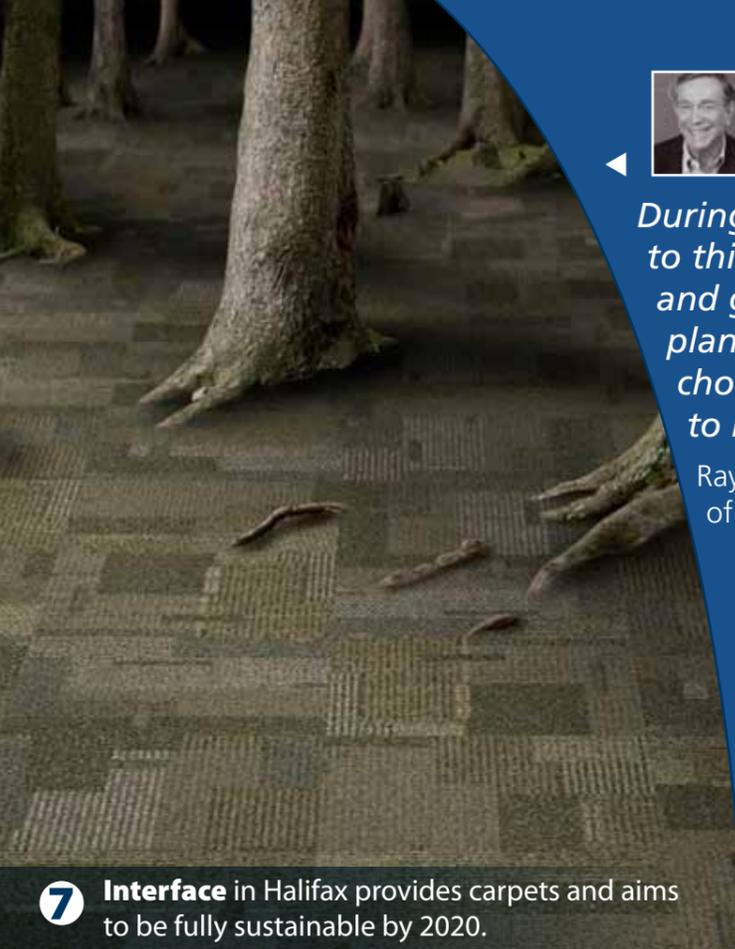

1 The Lorna Young Foundation in Huddersfield supports social enterprise ventures such as Oromo Coffee.

YORKSHIRE and Humberside SUCCESS

3 Taylors of Harrogate is dedicated to the pleasures of good tea and coffee.

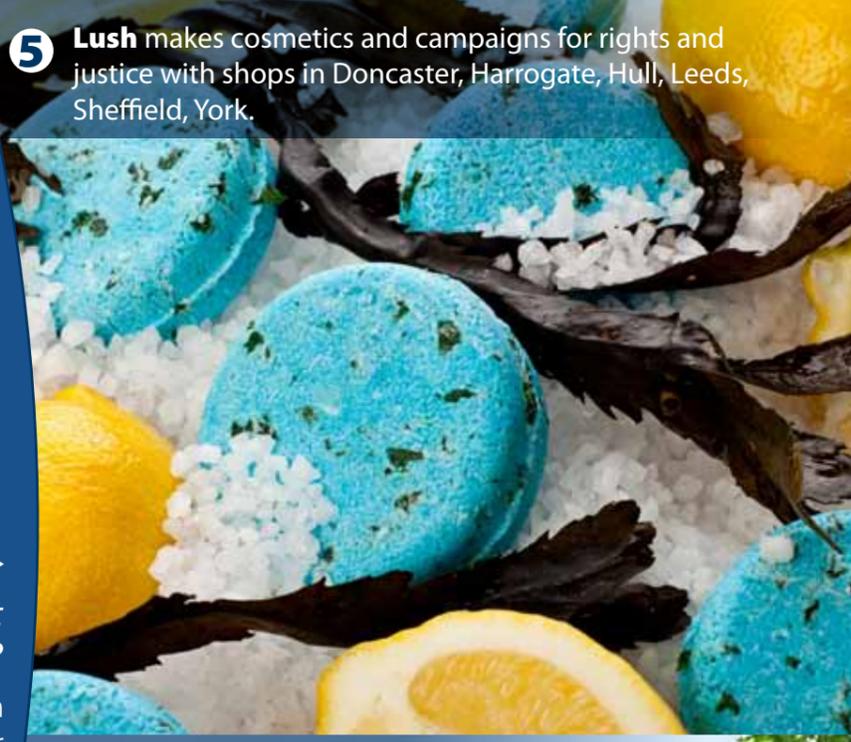

During our brief visit to this beautiful blue and green living planet we have a choice: to hurt it or to help it.

Ray Anderson, Founder of Interface

The world is in a bit of a mess isn't it?

Mark Constantine, Lush inventor and co-founder

5 Lush makes cosmetics and campaigns for rights and justice with shops in Doncaster, Harrogate, Hull, Leeds, Sheffield, York.

7 Interface in Halifax provides carpets and aims to be fully sustainable by 2020.

8 ADAS works with farming and the environment e.g. at Duggleby, and provides Helping Hands.

If we are completely serious about being 'carbon free' we need to rethink the design of our buildings on a large scale.

Craig White, Founder and Director, ModCell

6 Modcell buildings, such as community housing in Bramley, sequester carbon.

Energy and enthusiasm are everywhere. Find the right catalyst to bring it all together and your business will thrive.

Richard Laverick, Director of Sustainability, ADAS

9 Surfers Against Sewage protects waves from pollution and marine litter at Scarborough and around the UK coastline.

As a small organisation their contribution makes a big difference.

Pete Lewis, Surfers Against Sewage

Yorkshire Success shows ethical actions in Yorkshire & Humberside.

These and other examples from around the UK can be found at www.picturesofsuccess.org.

Pictures of Success challenges the conventional view of success. It shows how companies and others are helping to address poverty, climate change and other pressing issues. It is underpinned by the Earth Charter – ethical principles for building a just, sustainable and peaceful global society in the 21st century.

Pictures of Success provides a basis for dialogue about business now and in the future, and serves as a powerful training and engagement tool. For more information visit the website or contact peter.martin@carbonsense.com

This poster presentation has been supported by WISE (the Wilberforce Institute for the study of Slavery and Emancipation, Hull) as part of its work on supporting the development of ethical trading practices in the Yorkshire and Humber region. This work has been funded by the Joseph Rowntree Charitable Trust. For further information on the project and on related work contact g.craig@hull.ac.uk carbonsense

www.picturesofsuccess.org